Energy Audits and Energy Management Systems – Transform the obligation into an opportunity!

Dear Sir or Madam,

You are surely aware of the new German federal bill on energy services (Energiedienstleistungsgesetz EDL-G), which is an obligation to all “non SME’s” in order to conduct energy audits or introduce an energy management system until the 5th of December 2015.

The energy experts from TOTAL Energy Efficiency Network Agency, shortly TENAG, may offer you their competent assistance – both in fulfilling the legal requirements of the EDL-G as well as sustainable energy strategies for your business.

Non-SME's within the definition of EDL-G are:

- Enterprises with more than 250 employees, or at least 50 million euros annual turnover and a balance sheet of at least 43 million euros
- Enterprises that apply to the key figures mentioned above, due to shareholder relations

Enterprises affected by the EDL-G: 2015 legislation must show prove of one of the three following measures:

- Performed energy audits according to DIN EN 16247-1
- Established and by an accredited body certified energy or environmental management systems (according to ISO 50001 or EMAS III)
- Energy or environmental management systems (ISO 50001 or EMAS III), which are still in the implementation process must be fully established and certified by an accredited body no later than December 2016.

Our TENAG experts support you!

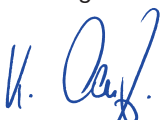

The Federal Office of Economics and Export Control (Bundesamt für Wirtschaft und Ausfuhrkontrolle – BAFA) will start with random checks compliance to the audit obligation.

In case of a BAFA review leading to the result of non-compliance to the legal obligation a fine of up to 50,000 euros per legal entity can be imposed. Similar regulations exist in other European countries – Our TENAG experts may also give you advice on other countries’ specific regulations.
